

How to Access Resources

Accessing your resources is easier than ever thanks to One-Click Access.

To open any resource on your list, simply click on the resource once.

If the resource is link-based, it will automatically open the link into a new tab in your browser.

Figure 1: Student Interface - Resource List

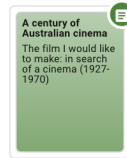

If the resource is file-based (i.e. PDF), the file will automatically begin downloading to your computer or device.

If there is a specific licence requiring review or acceptance of the Licence Terms, then a notice will be displayed after clicking the resource. In the top right corner of the notice warning, an OPEN button will appear. Clicking this will proceed to open the resource.

This material has been reproduced and communicated to you by or on behalf of Trial Institution in accordance with section 113P of the Copyright Act 1968 (Act).

The material in this communication may be subject to copyright under the Act.

Any further reproduction or communication of this material by you may be the subject of copyright protection under the Act.

Deb Verhoven, 'The Film I Would like to Make: In Search of a Cinema (1927-1970)', in A Century of Australian Cinema (Port Melbourne: William Heinemann Australia, 1995), 32–153.

Verhoven, Deb. 'The Film I Would like to Make: In Search of a Cinema (1927-1970)'. In A Century of Australian Cinema, 32–153. Port Melbourne: William Heinemann Australia, 1995.

Figure 2: Student Interface - Copyright warning

You can also cancel opening the resource and return to the list by clicking the X on the top left of the notice.